Instead of the top cell being aligned to the left, the bottom table cell is, and even so the bottom row of the left table has the top of the left table aligned with it. The alignment is just off. What's new:

by Kevin "Gibberish" Hayes Trolls all Caves, all the time! September 6th, 2011 The Monstrous Lair is back for another edition of Fantasy Grounds. This week on the Monstrous Lair, I'll be talking about an aspect of mauling, the cave itself. The basic concept is that our party has gone down into the lair of a troll and there's a bit of a scene up in the surface world. It's definitely much more scene heavy than the first. We'll be talking about some neat traps and some big bad monsters. The set itself is mostly based around the TakingMauled mechanic. Basic Information Trolls all Caves, all the time! 5E Weapons and Traps Severing Spear Main Feat: Troll's Claw Paralysis Spray Flame Shock (Multi-Use) Burrow Strike Foul Breath (Multi-Use) Wipe Out Trap Skill: Troll's Wound Special: Can be used any number of times per round (upon activation) Trap: 1 Trap Skill: Mimicking Animal Trap Skill: When activated, immediately activates the next Multi-Use effect already in a character's arsenal. One advantage the troll has is a feature that allows him to socialize. The monster currently has moves that include a variety of social interaction options. First, there's a feature called a rant, which often means that the troll will yell a lot. The rant allows him to yell this instead of using his griping skill. This feature also can allow him to have a similar sized burst of attack as the dart attack, but it can also help force our poor heroes to gain the initiative. The troll has a small melee arsenal. He can start with a feeble punch that is usually more useful for ripping his victims from their seats then to deliver a damaging blow. Nevertheless, it can be used to start bloodletting to get them on their backs. His three classic melee attacks are a clawed punch, a bite, and a headbutt. The clawed punch, of course, is regular claw damage and uses the attack of that name. It also allows him to slide his fingernails over his knuckles. The bite deal more damage, but it uses
